TIP OF THE DAY

In Indonesia, there are public, private and military hospitals. Public hospitals are usually called RSU (Rumah Sakit Umum), and sometimes they are administered by public universities that have medical departments. Many private hospitals are owned by religious groups. Private hospitals are not always better than public ones, but they are more expensive. Military hospitals are rare, but other than treating service members and their families, they are also available for civil servants and the general public.

TIP OF THE DAY

Dental hygiene is relatively poor in Indonesia. Most people will go to see the dentist if they already suffer from a terrible toothache. They don't go regularly for check ups or for cleaning. Only rich people or those who have enough money go see the dentist regularly. It is also very rare for Indonesians to have dental insurance.

Exercise 8 (Pair Work)

Pretend that you are going to visit your Indonesian friend in a hospital. You don't know where the hospital is. Have a conversation with your partner who plays the role of your Indonesian neighbor asking about the location of the hospital.

B: Tentu saja tidak.
A: Di mana letak Rumah Sakit Cipto?

A: Bagaimana saya bisa ke sana?
B: Dari sini Anda jalan terus ke Jalan Tomo lalu belok kiri di Jalan Abadi. Jalan Abadi ini berakhir di jalan tol yang menuju ke Rumah Sakit. Di jalan tol itu Anda keluar di Jalan Cempaka. Rumah Sakit Cipto ada di sebelah kanan jalan.
A: Terima kasih.
B: Sama sama. Lebih baik Anda juga membawa peta
A: Baiklah.

Sinta: Tidak, Dok. Saya rajin menggosok gigi dan periksa ke dokter gigi.
Dokter: Baiklah. Akan saya lihat. Silakan duduk di kursi periksa!
Sinta: Baiklah.
Dokter: Coba, buka mulut Anda lebar-lebar!
Sinta: Aaaaa
Dokter: Hmm, memang tidak ada gigi yang berlubang. Di sebelah mana yang sakit?
Sinta: Di bagian bawah atas, Dok.
Dokter: Coba saya lihat. Hmm, ada gigi baru yang mau tumbuh.
Sinta: Apakah karena itu gigi saya sakit?

- Dokter: Iya, gigi itu terhalang kiri yang lain, oleh karena itu dia mencari jalan lain. Yang sakit bukan gigi Anda tetapi gusi Anda.
- Sinta: Apa yang harus saya lakukan?
